TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOURSELF AND OTHERS: This virus is still with us, and we cannot become complacent! The importance of personal responsibility cannot be emphasized enough in order to protect ourselves, our family and friends, and our community. The best defense is to not be exposed to COVID-19!

- Practice good hygiene – wash your hands frequently and thoroughly
- Clean and disinfect surfaces frequently and thoroughly
- Maintain your distance from others – stay six feet away from non-household members
- Wear a face covering in public
- Keep your social circle small
- Know the symptoms; stay home if you are sick; and get tested

CLARIFICATION: In yesterday's News Release, we shared that there were differences between the industry quarantine and testing requirements in Washington as compared to Alaska. We'd like to provide one additional clarification, Washington State does not have an industry mandate that requires quarantine and testing, but rather it is determined by the individual organizations. Vessels coming to Alaska, however, must follow the state mandates that require 14-day quarantining and COVID testing.
